MR. HAGGIN'S GREAT COLT. MAKING A SWEEP WITH THE TOP LOAD IN THE TREMONT STAKES.

McLaughlin Laude Favor Far Ahead of Dry Monopole and Barnum in the Parkway Mandicap-Mr. Cassatt's Dark Colt Amaigam Causes a Tumble in the Myrtle Stakes.

An immense assemblage, estimated at not less than 10,000, gathered at the reopening of the Brooklyn Jockey Club's races in Gravesend yesterday. Sixty bookmakers and four times that number of assistants arrived by the early trains and prepared their stands for the betting crowd, and a mighty crowd it was after the large number of entries for the selling race causing the field to be split and made into two races. No auction pools were sold, and there was no mutual pool machinery on the ground. Betting was confined to books and combina-tions. After the first race men elbowed and lought their way to the stands.

It was a good day for the favorites, and some of the commissioners disbursed more than they received. The programme was a rich one in a sporting sense, including two stake races and the Parkway Handicap, the latter at the Suburban distance. The handicap was won by McLaughlin on G. B. Morris's horse Favor, the five-year-old son of Pat Malloy. The way McLaughlin headed off Hayward, who was winning on Dry Monopole, with Frank McLaughlin sending old Barnum along in second place, well down the homestretch, was cheerful to see. Favor headed them off as though they were tied up, winning by four lengths in 2:10%.

Mr. Haggin's colt Guarantee, son of Sensaion. in the race for the Tremont Stakes, probably settled the question as to which is the best two-year-old of the year. The Californian carried the top load of 122 pounds, giving fortham, Tea Tray, and other good ones seven pounds and a beating, finishing alone in the fast time of 1:15%. Mr. Cassatt's colt Amalgam, that was unthought of and sold with the outsiders in the race for the Myrtle Stakes, strided to the front while Markland was pricking his ears on being hailed as winner of the stakes, causing the liveliest upset of the day. The races were replete with interest from first to last. They were run in this order:

Starter Caldwell sent the horses away nearly abreast. Settling down to their work in the run for the turn to the backstretch, Herbert, Markland, and Biscuit ran in close company as anamed, Rowiand bringing up the rear. Mc-Goldrick set the pace along the backstretch, sending Markland out for the dust. The race was not between Markland, Herbert, Birthday, Biscuit, and Amaigam along the stretch, round the lower turn and into the homestretch, Markland holding the var and appearing like a winner until half way down the straight, when Davis put in his claim on Mr. Cassati's colt Amaigam. Amaigam collared Markland in the last half furiong, and headed him, winning by a length. Biscuit and Lancaster came in two lengths behind Markland in a dead heat for third place. There was no bid for the winner.

In the run to the far turn Dry Monopole passed Editor, followed by Barnum. This pair then fought neck and neck until they reached the last half furlong pole when McLaughlin, who had been holding Favor in reserve, gave him his head, and the horse lit out like a skyrocket, winning four lengths ahead of Dry Monopole, Barnum lapping Dry Monopole.

THE PASSAIC REGATTA.

Interesting Contests Between Crews from Many Cities.

The fifteenth annual regatta of the Passalo River Amateur Rowing Association was held at Newark yesterday, and it was witnessed by about 5,000 people on the docks, the balconies pleasure craft. The wind blew down the river and raised a choppy sea upon the course during most of the day, but toward evening the water was quite smooth. John B. Waish of the Fairmount Rowing Association of Philadelphia was referee, and J. Wood Adams Waish of the Fairmount Bowing Association of the Newark Mystic Boat Club was judge at the finish, while the timekeepers were R. O. Morse of the Nassaus and Henry W. Garfield of the Mutuals of Albany. All of the races were a mile and a half straight away.

The morning contests were trial heats only with the exception of the pair-cared gig race, which was contested by Chamberry and Quigley of the Institutes, Freeman & Weldon of the Eurekas of Newark, and Mueller and Hard of the New York Athletic Club. Thomas Flynn sat dozing upon the top of the cashier's desk in Billiardist Tim Flynn's Nassau street parlors yesterday, when the clink of a silver dollar that a customer threw down rudely disturbed his repose. Thomas Flynn is a black and white cat of heroic size that has a reputation in the billiard world. Mr. Cornelius Flynn, the champion slippery-pole climber of Alderman Divver'scotorie, finding it necessary to get at the cash drawer, hit the stalwart Thomas Flynn a cult over his off ear, and ten amateurs who leaned against the bar turned around and gazed in amazement as Thomas Flynn rose upon his hind quarters and prometly hit back with his left paw, catching the champion slippery-pole climber full on the shoulder.

"What, do you want to box?" cried Cornelius, "M-e-o-w!" purred the big cat in unmistakable sassent.

Cornelius Flynn squared off, and so did Thomas Flynn, and for the next three minutes the billiard amateurs roared in delight to watch the two. The big cat parried Cornelius's tender blows defity with his left paw and returned them promptly with his right, just as a dandy sparrer would do. The sport kept up until Cornelius pushed his elbow under the cat's head and tilted him over. The cat righted himself, playfully bit Cornelius's elbow, and sprang off the desk with a gracoful leap.

Half an hour later a fresh lot of customers were watching Thomas Flynn's antics on a billiard table. He was pretending to play billiards with Billy, "the Dandy Bartender." Billy made a carrom and the cat immediately chased after the cue ball, and effected a carrom with comical haste. Rounds of apphuse greeted the performance.

"That cat," said Tim Flynn afterward, "is worth his weight in gold. I'll bet a hundred that he can box as well as a man can, and he is the only cat I ever heard of that can play billiards. He was reared in a billiard atmosphere and seems to know all about the game."

Two hours after Tim Flynn passed this enconium upon the feline giant a workman engaged in trimming the bar mirrors with colored atte animals between the audience and the stage, a "bacchanalian revel" in which 800 dancers will take part, and other features too numerous to mention.

The show will be run by electricity. It will be impossible for one-half of the dancers to hear the music of the orehestra, so Mr. Kiralfy has invented a system of signaling by electric bells, so that the ladies of the court will know just when to stop dancing and go to kneeling and looking pretty, and doing other things necessary to the proper progress of the Babylonic fall. Twelve electric bells, with sound reflectors so arranged that they cannot be heard by the audience, will give the signals to change the movements. The conductor, by another electric arrangement, will beat time so that every dancer can catch it. Such an arrangement as this has never been used before, and he expects great things of it.

When the rehearsals on Staten Island begin, on Monday, Mr. Kiralfy will take a stenographer down with him. Each girl will have a big numbered card on the front of her dress. When Mr. Kiralfy sees any of the dancers make a mistake—and he says there can't one of them make a mistake without his secing it—he will do his secolding to the stenographer, and afterward the girls will be called up and each will get the scolding that belongs to her number, according to the stenographer minutes. This will prevent the delay that would be caused by stopping the rehearsal to correct each mistake. It will take about two weeks of Staten Island rehearsals to get the spectacle ready for presentation.

"I managed 4,000 performers once at a royal fete in Brussels," said Mr. Kiralfy resterday, "but that was only for a single performance. This is the biggest regular company I have ever handled, but I am confident the performance will be as perfect as though there were only 100 instead of 1,000 on the stage. It's all a matter of management. It's size is much, but it is more than big; it is grand, wonderful, immense, it will be called up and beautiful. Then he would welt the floor with his club some more and say cross things in several languages. Mr. Imre hiralfy, who watched the proceedings, also did considerable polyglot scolding. After which the girls would get mad and chase Mr. Coppini again.

After an hour or so the young women got tired and gave it up, but 200 or 300 more, who had been dropping in, took their turn at keeping Mr. Copbini from gettingdonely. This sort of thing has been going on for two weeks, and on Monday the scene of action will be transferred to a big casino on Staten Island, there to continue until Mr. Kiralfy thinks the girls are able to properly astonish New York with a production of "The Fall of Babylon," which he modestly describes as the most wonderful spectacle ever produced in the world, since the time when Babylon did really take a tumble.

BROOKLYN, 14; LOUISVILLE, 7.

The Brooklyns had another dish of chicken pie served to them by the Louisville Club at Washington Park yesterday. Both clubs batted hard, but the hits of the home team wore made just where they did the greatest amount of good in the way of run getting. The Louisville man played with little vim; in fact, they did not seem able to do anything with the ball. They could not have done much worse had their hands been smeared with grease. Collins did poorly at first base, while the other men contributed largely to the error column. There was but little of interest in the game, but the 7.000 spectators made things lively by their yells, as is usual with a big crowd. They cheered every good blay by the home toam and every poor play by the visitors. The Brooklyns of the players put more vim in their work and ran the bases with a will, their base stealing being a feature.

The Brooklyns opened the game with Pinkney at the bat, and he hit the ball hard. A shase on balls by McClellau moved Pinkney to second, and both men stole up a base. A slow grounder to white by Smith let in Pinkney. Phillips then went to first on balls, and Terry's safe hit brought in McClellau and Smith. The visitors got in a run in their half of the first work in the third liming, or rather the visitors got to work as it was mainly by their errors that the home team secred six runs. All that the Brooklyns did toward scoring these runs were a three-base hit and a single just where they did the greatest amount of good. A three-hase hit and a single just where they did the greatest amount of good. A three-hase hit and a single just where they did the greatest amount of good. A three-hase hit and a single just where they did the greatest amount of good. A three-hase hit and a single just where they did the greatest amount of good. A three-hase hit got down to work, and a two-base hit by Browning, a single by White, and a two-bagger by Mack netted two runs. In the mean time the home club had been adding goose eggs to its score, but when the eighth inning came round the Brookiyns again got to work. A safe hit by McTamany, an error by Collins, a two-base hit by Phillips, and a single by Terry netted three runs. This ended the run getting. The score:

METROPOLITAN, 1; CINCINNATI, 3,

Just why the Indians failed to defeat the Cincinnati team at Staten Island yesterday would be a hard matter to understand by a look at the score. The Indians cutbatted the visitors three to one, made only one more error, and ran the bases just as well. In fact, they were somewhat more daring in their base stealing. It was such a game as is won and lost with no apparent cause. The Metropolitans had men on bases several times, and a hit would have tied the game, but at almost all of these points weak men were at the bat, and they could do nothing in the way of knocking out a hit. The hits of the home team were very badly scattered, and did not heir in he run getting to any extent. Although three hits wore got togother in the inning in which their run was scored, yet had not Kid Baldwin made an error in dropping the ball just as Esterbrook crossed the pints, the Metropolitans would not have scored a run. The home team played a fairly sharp game, but the work of the visitors was the feature. Their outfielders fairly outful themselves, and everything that came their way was caught, even when the mon them two knocked down and forced toll. The Metropolitans would not have such as a surface run.

Maya pitched a remarkably fine game, only two clean hits being made off him, About 5.500 spectators were present. The Indians were much weakened by the absence of Orr and Hankinson, who are both laid up. They will be able to play next week.

The visitors opened the game rather wildly, but their errors did not prove costly. Radford's slow grounder was fumbled by Fennelly, and a wild throw by Kid Baldwin let the little short stop skip around to third base, but when he tried to steal in on O'Brien's force he was down between third and home. In the meantime Nelson had gone out, and O'Brien was then caught stealing second base. The wisitors fared between the half of the lirst inning. McPhee was hit by a pitched ball, a steal, and a wild throw by Holbert, and a safe hit by Corkhili, netted a run.

In the second inning Donohue, Ester

BOSTON, 11: PHILADELPHIA. 9.

BOSTON, June 11. — Some 5,000 spectators saw the Philadelphias taken into camp a third time to-day in a game in which slugging was the rule. Radbourne was pounded all over the field. The crowd was utterly disgusted with his performance. He was batted for fifteen hits, three of them two-baggers. Great fielding and timely stick work alone saved the Bostons. Wacelock, Kelly, and Nash, in particular, distinguished themselves. The score: BOSTON.

DETROIT, Mich., June 11.—The Indianapolis and Detroits played a close and exciting game to-day. There was some bad playing, but sharp work predominated, as five fine double plays by the home nine will testify. Dunlap and Bassett did well at second, Dunlap surpassing himself. Cahill's fumble, a phantom hit, an out, and a single case Detroit two in the first.

Another error by Cahill and a two-base hit yielded one in the sixth; and in the seventh, a single, a triple, two-fielders' choices, and errors by Myers and Seery gave 4 more. Two singles, a double, a triple, a wild pitch, and Ganzel's wild throw and muff gave five to the visitors in the second. A fielder's choice, two hits, and a put out gave them one in the fifth.
